Duty of Candour Report 2018-19

All health and social care services in Scotland have a duty of candour. In addition to a professional duty of candour, this is a legal requirement which means that when unintended or unexpected adverse events happen that result in death or harm as defined in the Act, the people affected understand what has happened, receive an apology, and that organisations learn how to improve for the future. An important part of this duty is that we provide an annual report about how the duty of candour is implemented in our services.

This short report describes how Orchard Medical Centre has operated the duty of candour during the time between 1 April 2018 and 31 March 2019. We hope you find this report useful.

1. About Orchard Medical Centre

Orchard Medical Centre serves a population of just under 13,000 patients in North Lanarkshire mainly in the Motherwell area but also has patients in the Wishaw and Bellshill areas. Our aim is to provide high quality care for every person who uses our services, and where possible to receive care at home.

2. How many incidents happened to which Duty of Candour applies?

Between 1 April 2018 and 31 March 2019, there were no incidents where the duty of candour applied. Such incidents are unintended or unexpected events that result in death or harm as defined in the Act, and do not relate directly to the natural course of someone's illness or underlying condition.

Type of unexpected or unintended incident (not related to the natural course of someone's illness or underlying condition)	Number of times this happened (between 1 April 2018 and 31 March 2019)

A person needing health treatment in order to prevent other injuries as listed above	0

3. To what extent did Orchard Medical Centre follow the duty of candour procedure?

We actively sought out cases to which a Duty of Candour might apply but did not find any. To this extent we were fully compliant with the duty of candour procedure.

4. Information about our policies and procedures

Where something has happened that has the potential to trigger duty of candour, our staff report this to the practice manager who has responsibility for ensuring duty of candour procedure is followed.

The manager records the incident and reports as necessary to the Care Inspectorate. When an incident has happened, the manager sets up a learning review. This allows everyone involved to review what happened and identifies changes for the future.

All new staff learn about the duty of candour at their induction. We know that serious mistakes can be distressing for staff as well as patients and their families.

The practice identifies such incidents through our adverse event management process. We regularly carry out significant adverse event reviews. These events include a wider range of outcomes than those defined in the duty of candour legislation as we also include adverse events that did not result in significant harm but had the potential to cause significant harm.

We would hope to identify through the significant adverse event review process any factors that may have caused or contributed to the event, which helps to identify duty of candour incidents.

5. What has changed as a result?

We have not identified any Duty of Candour events this year and so there are no resulting changes to report.

6. Other information

This is the first year of the duty of candour being in operation and it has been a year of learning and refining our existing adverse event management processes to include the duty of candour outcomes.

As required, we have submitted this report to Scottish Ministers and we have also placed it on our website.
